

Butterfly exhibition in the desert

Nature lovers can enjoy a new butterfly attraction in Phoenix, Arizona, from March 2 through May 12 at the Desert Botanical Garden.

They will have the opportunity to visit the Majestic Butterflies exhibit and see the beauty of these winged creatures up close and learn about each stage of their life cycle.

This attraction offers an educational and captivating experience for all ages that will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; it also offers visitors the chance to marvel at more than 1,000 free-flying Southwestern butterflies.

Likewise, Majestic Butterflies highlights the importance of protecting butterflies and their habitat; through detailed information, visitors will discover the actions they can take to contribute to the conservation of these creatures that are so important to the ecosystem.

The exhibit is just a sample of the extraordinary diversity of life found in the desert; you will be able to explore a wide variety of plants and animals adapted to the unique conditions of this ecosystem.

Majestic Butterflies promises to be an unforgettable experience for all nature lovers, as well as an opportunity to connect with the beauty of the desert and learn about the importance of protecting its biodiversity.

Plan your visit

When visiting the Desert Botanical Garden, visitors are invited to immerse themselves in natural wonders, whether watching the delicate wings of butterflies fluttering among the flowers or contemplating the majesty of the desert landscapes.

In order to fully enjoy the different tours and exhibits at the park, visitors are recommended to bring sunscreen, water, a hat, comfortable shoes to walk the garden paths and sunglasses so they can enjoy the different attractions of the place in a more enjoyable way.

It is also advisable to bring a camera to capture the special moments you will live with your friends or family; the calendar of the various events of the Desert Botanical Garden can be consulted on its official website.
